"The stars incline, but do not compel"

(Copyright by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1914.

An unimportant day, according to the interpretation of the seers. Early in the morning Jupiter is faintly beneficent in aspect and later Neptune and the Sun are slightly adverse. In the evening Mars is in a place read as helpful.

Business affairs should be conducted with caution. Whatever depends on favor from persons who hold supreme authority should be delayed and routine matters watched with care.

College professors and students should be fairly fortunate. The stars indicate the predominance of practical interests in the classrooms and it is said that youth will have unequalled opportunities to win early success in the world of big affairs.

There is a sign held as sinister in its indications of conditions that concern mineral wealth. Copper is subject to a sway that will affect certain western states, but it will bring great fortunes within three years, the seers declare.

Mexico has the prognostication of new troubles before the end of the winter. Americans who hold large interests are warned not to be foolhardy.

The aspect is not encouraging for travel by water. Storm and peril are foreshadowed.

The rule of the stars is conducive to arguments and to much talking on public questions. Lectures are under an influence propitious for orators and public speakers of every class.

Women probably will not find this a happy day, for they may experience difficulties in dealing with persons who assert authority.

While Neptune is evilly disposed, hospitals and public institutions of every sort are best avoided. There is a prediction of much illness during the winter. Epidemics are probable.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a trying year before them. If the stars are read right, business may harass and perplex and disappointments may disturb domestic happiness.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly clever and original. Perilous travels are often imperative for these subjects of Scorpio.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1914.

According to astrology this is not a lucky day for most business activities. Uranus, Jupiter and Saturn are adverse and Neptune alone is friendly.

The aspect of Neptune is read as most encouraging to all who are engaged in the world of commerce. Shipping is subject to a rule that will develop immense avenues of trade. Warning is given, however, that avarice may cause serious difficulties.

There is a sign today that is believed to indicate severe anxieties for the president of the United States, who should guard his health through the next month.

There is a sinister prognostication for miners, persons who deal in land and coal merchants. Saturn's evil power may produce strikes, loss of business and grave conditions in the industrial world.

The configuration today is not a fortunate one for bankers, financiers and speculators.

It is predicted that although lack of money may cause temporary depression in certain centers of population, a period of prosperity will begin next month, when Venus, stationary in Sagittarius, presages revival of trade.

Astrologers predict that new towns will spring up in many states of the West and South. Builders and architects have a lucky leading, it is said.

The rise of a famous educator is prognosticated. Reforms in public schools are again indicated.

Publishing will be subject to many vicissitudes in the next few months, the seers declare. Certain magazines and newspapers will benefit but others will suffer severe losses. Makers of books in this country will face problems which affect American authors so vitally that only the best will obtain publication.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of anxiety and activity during the coming year. Speculation will be unfortunate.

Children born on this day may be careless and extravagant, fond of company and quick of wit. Many surgeons and engineers are born under their sign, Scorpio.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1914.

Astrology reads in the stars today promise of good fortune, for, after the early morning hours, Uranus, Venus and Jupiter are in benefic aspect.

It is a rule held to be especially lucky for women. Business and professional affairs should prosper and speculative ventures should be lucky.

Love affairs are subject to the best guidance, the seers declare, since Venus is in a place believed to give ability to recognize charm and to appear at one's best.

Accords should benefit by this aspect. The sway of the stars is believed to impart audiences the power of responding quickly to any appeal.

Theaters are subject to better conditions today than usual. It is a favorable time for initiating any new venture.

With both Venus and Uranus friendly, it is a most auspicious time for making new acquaintances of opposite sex. Romance should be strongly felt while the configuration prevails.

Uranus gives fair promise for changes or removals. Travel for business or science is likely to be most successful. An arctic traveler will be heard from within a month, the seers predict, and he will report a great discovery.

The sway tends to awaken the imaginative faculties and to quicken in tuition. Inventors should prosper greatly while Uranus is friendly.

The visit of Mars to the sign which rules Spain may cause trouble to that country in December.

Japan continues to be the subject to the most disturbing influences. Hawaii and other islands will feel the effects of them.

Loss of relatives will sadden the kaiser, according to the prophecy of a London astrologer, who predicts that the ruler of Germany will suffer mental and physical agony.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid traveling by water. They have the omen of accidents in the coming year. The stars promise business prosperity and domestic harmony.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly alert and active. They are likely to have happy lives and to make the most of the joys that come to them. These subjects of Scorpio have Mars as their ruling sign.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1914.

This is a lucky day, astrologers declare, for those who wait until afternoon for visits with friends or associations with persons from whom they desire benefits. The sun is in a place strongly beneficent and the influences tend toward all that is encouraging and stimulating.

Ministers and missionaries should find this a fortunate time for the furthering of their philanthropic enterprises. The aspect is fairly favorable for the awakening of sympathy and a desire for co-operation in large plans for the betterment of humanity.

Warning is given, however, that the stars presage the greatest demands ever made upon all organizations designed to aid needy men and women. The new activities, prognosticated for the churches and kindred organizations since 1900, will make necessary larger schemes than any ever contemplated for the alleviation of distress.

The signs presaging danger to missionaries in the Orient are held to indicate continued peril. Repeated massacres and persecutions of Christians, long foretold, will be continued.

Venus is in a place held to be threatening for the affairs of women. It is prophesied that within a year competition in all the vocations usually followed by them will be increased a hundredfold, especially in the humbler occupations.

The planetary rule is not encouraging for romance. While the winter will be a time for many marriages in high places and for alliances of an unexpected character, the number of weddings among persons in medium circumstances will diminish.

The seers predict an increase in the birthrate, boys predominating among the children born in 1915.

According to the horoscope of Pope Benedict XV the church will encounter many supreme problems during his rule. There is an augury indicating internal dissensions in which new and old traditions will clash. The pontiff's stars indicate reactionary tendencies and an iron will.

Persons whose birthdate it is have an omen warning them against new enterprises. They may meet unusual anxieties both in business and social life. Girls should be unusually cautious in guarding their reputations, as scandals are foreshadowed.

Children born on this day probably will have eventful lives. Girls are likely to gain fame at the price of happiness. These subjects of Scorpio have Mars as their principal ruling planet.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1914.

Saturn and Mars rule kindly in the early hours today, according to the reading of astrology, but the late afternoon and evening are exceedingly unfortunate. Mars becomes adverse, while the Sun and Uranus are also inimical.

Business affairs are subject to a fairly good guidance in the morning. Bankers, especially, should benefit. There is a prophecy that an American financier will acquire fame through some international organization. There is said to be gain in southern countries.

Judges, senators, diplomats and all counselors are believed to be aided by the stars in this configuration. Today's decisions should be wise, the seers declare, but they predict a new trouble for the president through one of his representatives in a distant land.

This is a most unlucky rule for all who seek favor after sundown. Political speakers are under an unfavorable sway of the stars and all who run for office are warned to guard against eleventh hour tactics on the part of opponents.

Mars still rules the kaiser, who will not escape from the evil influence of the planet, the seers declare, until he has lost "what is dearest to him." Uranus transiting the Sun's place at birth is held to foreshadow mental conditions tending toward extremes. When reverses come to him they will be as great as former successes.

Death in the valley of darkness is prognosticated by a London astrologer, who foresees his "empire laid waste, his power departed, his people estranged, his pride broken and his heart weighed down by domestic affliction as well as by public disaster."

This same seer foretells three years of horrible upheaval in Europe, during which all nations shall feel the leveling power of war, while half barbaric peoples shall overrun the places known as centers of civilization.

Persons whose birthdate this is have an augury of anxiety during the coming year. Changes will not be lucky.

Children born on this day may find many difficulties to surmount. They probably will be forced to work out their own salvations in times of stress. They are likely to be slow to anger, strong in prejudices, ambitious and shrewd. Their sign is Scorpio and their principal ruling planet Mars.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1914.

This is not a fortunate day, since Jupiter, Saturn, Mercury and Mars are all adverse, according to the reading of astrology.

Candidates for political office are subject to a government of the stars, which presages surprises and disappointments. Party lines will be ignored, if the planets are to be trusted, and personal prejudices or resentments will have strong sway.

The sign, which at the first of the year was read to indicate increased taxation, still prevails with sinister aspect and public discontent will be widespread. It is prognosticated. Instead of relief, increased need of large revenues is predicted.

There is an aspect interpreted as warning the president of the United States to conserve his strength, as "great national problems in the Orient" will confront the United States.

On this day old persons may meet disappointment. Saturn is in a place presaging unfortunate experiences. Senators and representatives in congress may suffer unforeseen defeats.

There is a rule most unfavorable to editors and publishers. Extraordinary expense and small returns are indicated and financial disaster may overtake large concerns.

The czar of Russia has Saturn in opposition to the progressed moon, and this is read as denoting bereavement or ill health. His armies are subject to a planetary government, said to impart a terrible momentum, that will enable them to sweep through Europe. A new era for the Slav is prognosticated and it will menace even the allies of the bear.

The position of Neptune in the royal sign of Leo on the cusp of the tenth house is unfortunate for royalty in Great Britain. This month of November may bring great anxiety. The loss of ships is foreshadowed. Stormy weather may cause unexpected difficulties on land as well as sea.

Again socialism is subject to a rule that presages some extraordinary activity or enterprise.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of rather an anxious year. They should guard against accidents. Speculation will be unlucky and letters from young folk may bring trouble.

Children born on this day are likely to be high-strung and difficult to manage. They may have a tendency to be untruthful. They should be trained to be exact in all financial affairs. They probably will be magnetic and attractive in personality.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1914.

According to astrology this is rather an uncertain day, for, while Mars is strongly adverse, Neptune is in benefic aspect and Saturn is mildly helpful.

It is not an auspicious time for any enterprise which requires calm judgment. Mars, in evil reign, is believed to incline toward acts rash and ill-advised.

While the aspect is in operation, it is wise to be temperate in all things, avoiding disputes and controversies and utilizing the mental and physical forces equally.

The configuration is an unfortunate one for investments. Buying is subject to a most unlucky rule.

It is not a favorable time for dealing with engineers, contractors and ironworkers.

Shipping today is subject to the most promising conditions, but, owing to the malevolent power of Mars, caution should be exercised in all that pertains to foreign commerce. Scandals and serious complications are indicated.

Saturn is in a place believed to be fairly good for dealings with shoemakers and leather dealers. There is an especially fortunate prognostication for all who supply footwear.

The queen of Holland is under a planetary sway indicating severe anxieties, financial problems for her kingdom, and ill health for herself, or some member of her family.

The stars presage for the United States occupation by an army of women, children and old persons, probably refugees from Europe. There is a prophecy that new colonies will be started and that novel industries will be fostered.

An American woman scientist—a physician or chemist—will earn supreme honors in the world war. It is prophesied, also, that many girls and women from the United States will become engaged in the rehabilitation of devastated places abroad.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a busy and rather anxious year. Litigation should be avoided. Danger of accident or injury is foretold.

Children born on this day may be extremely positive in nature.

POULTRY

PREPARE GEESSE FOR MARKET

While Fattening Young Fowls They Should Be Kept Free From All Excitement—Keep in Pen.

The first feed for goslings is grass, fed on sod; a small allowance of corn meal, slightly moistened, is also given them. Sand and charcoal are sometimes mixed with the corn meal. They are fed on the above food three times a day for a couple of days, when they are given a ration composed of equal parts, by measure, of bran, middlings, and steamed cut clover or cooked vegetables. This feed is given them morning, noon, and night until they are eight weeks old, when they are penned to be fattened for market at ten weeks old.

To fatten young geese, place them in a pen, not too large, so that they will not exercise too much, and feed three times a day all they will eat up clean of the following: Corn meal mixed to a dry, crumbly state, and beef scraps amounting to 20 per cent of the bulk of the corn meal. While fattening young geese they should be kept as quiet as possible; no excitement whatever should disturb them. When feeding approach them quietly, and do not irritate them, in the least or they will not fatten, but will "throw out" or grow another crop of feathers. At ten weeks of age, or when the tips of the wings reach the tail, they are ready for market and should weigh between eight and ten pounds.

When young goslings are to be dressed for market, they are killed by cutting them in the roof of the mouth, severing the artery, or by stunning them by hitting them a sharp, quick blow on the head. The picker uses a box in front of him about the height of the knees, holding the bird with the left hand and clamping the feet and wings together; he places the head of the bird against the box and holds it in place with the knee. Pick the feathers from the body of the bird, then dampen the right hand and brush the body to remove the down. Leave about two inches of feathers on the neck, and also leave feathers on the wings at the first joint. Lay the wings against the body of the birds and tie a string around to hold in position. Place the birds, when picked, in cold water for an hour or so to plump them; if they are in the water too long they are liable to bleach and become water-soaked. They are then iced up in barrels ready to ship to market.

Young geese should be marketed before cold weather sets in. It is much harder to dress a gosling in cold weather. The feathers set tighter, and in picking them the flesh is torn.

ERADICATE THE ROOST MITE

Insects Are Easily Exterminated by Use of Kerosene Oil—Prevention Better Than Cure.

(By A. C. SMITH, Poultryman, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.)

Roost mites are very common and troublesome. When they become numerous enough, they not only infest the nests but other parts of the building, especially cracks and crevices, as well as the roosts. They are much like tiny spiders and are often called spider lice by poultrymen.

Mites are easily exterminated by applying kerosene to all infested parts of the building. They become numerous as soon as warm weather comes. As prevention is better than cure, it pays to paint your roosts once every four to six weeks in winter time and once every two weeks during the warm weather. You will probably never see a mite in a house so treated.

Fowls in an Orchard.

Fowls running at large in an orchard do an infinite amount of good in the destruction of larvae, worms, beetles, bugs, etc.

Good Cleanser.

Fresh earth in the dust bath will aid materially to cleanse the feathers and skin of impurities, effete matter and lice.
